GROOTE SCHUUR TOUR

HEART OF CAPE TOWN MUSEUM

The drama of the world's first human heart transplant, led by Professor Christiaan Neethling Barnard, played out within the walls of the Charles Saint Theatre, at Groote Schuur Hospital on the 3rd December 1967. The human heart transplant, one of the greatest moments in medical history, was made possible by an extraordinary interplay of scientific dedication; human courage and generosity and a timely chain of events. Today, The Heart of Cape Town Museum honours all those who played a major role in the surgical feat that pushed the boundaries of science, into the dawn of a new medical era, an era in which it became possible to transplant the symbol of the essence of life, our human heart.

GROOTE SCHUUR ESTATE

Groote Schuur big barn used to be the home of Cecil John Rhodes. The house sits in Rondebosch and was refurbished by Herbert Baker many years ago. This fascinating house is steeped in history, filled with original colonial furniture and is now a museum. The garden is spectacular and seems endless as the lawns roll on towards the mountains. The rose garden is simply stunning and is a must see. The grounds are kept well maintained and are exquisitely colourful with a variety of plants and flowers and makes for a fabulous place to go for a stroll. Some of the other flowers you may spot are cannas, hydrangeas, fuchsias and bougainvilleas.
